David Crowell is a professional writer and photographer with a passion for the outdoors and penchant for mountain biking and surfing. He has written numerous books, including Mountain Biking Colorado Springs, Exploring Southern California's Beaches, and Exploring Capital Reef National Park, each of which are FalconGuides. He lives in Ventura, California, with his wife, Heidi, and their son Dawson.

Great book with updates from his previous version, as soon as I saw that had this listed, the book was ordered before the publisher made it available. There are many new trails in Moab and this book is up to date in regards to the time it was published. Obviously, some trails like Navaho Rocks were finished after the book so are not included. This book is a nice compliment to help describe the trails and plan the next trip. David's description of the trails is very accurate in regards to difficulty and skill set. Highly recommend this book, well worth the few bucks and it fits easily into a backpack or pocket.

Good book, easy to follow directions. The trail systems in Moab are continually growing and changing, so the newer the book the better. While the classic trails remain the same, sometimes the access information has changed. We used this book on our latest trip to Moab and found it to be accurate and nice to have along. I recommend a bicycle odometer to get the most out of the trail directions in the book, as the author uses exact mileage.

Great up to date info....can't wait to ride!

This was very helpful for my sons and husband. They definitely enjoyed the trip!

Mediocre maps and trail descriptions; Doesn't include newer trails ...Navajo Rocks, Mag 7, etc. Get a copy of Rider Mel's Mountain Bike Guide to Moab instead.

This guide is super concise, just the info you need and not much fluff. The descriptions are accurate and the directions easy to follow. We've ridden in moab for over 20 years so we know it well, but they've put in over 100 miles of new trails in the last few years and this guide helps us explore new terrain. BEST OF ALL it's small enough to bring in your hydration pack so you bring it with you helping to keep your epics to a minimum
