Customer Reviews

Van K. Tharp, Ph.D., is the founder and president of the Van Tharp Institute. He is regarded as an international leader among professional trading coaches and consultants. Tharp is the author of three acclaimed books published by McGraw Hill: Trade Your Way to Financial Freedom, the New York Times best-seller now in its second edition, Safe Strategies for Financial Freedom, and Financial Freedom Through Electronic Day Trading.

In many ways I would consider "Super Trader" by Dr. Van Tharp the most valuable investing book I've read. The author focuses psychology, risk management, position sizing, and creating a business plan. The author does a sensational job of breaking all of these elements down in a way that is easy to read and understand. However, this should not be confused with the idea that trading is made easy. On the contrary, trading requires a LOT of work, self reflection, and discipline, more so than I realized prior. Often it's hard to even figure out the right questions to ask. "Super Trader" provides that and much much more! I feel that "Super Trader" is a book not just to be casually read, but to be studied carefully as if it were a text book. There are many lessons and exercises throughout the book and they are all well worth the readers time and effort to complete! I feel that the concepts discussed in this book can be applicable to any style of trading, CAN SLIM or otherwise. In my opinion it's a must read and has truly reshaped my thinking, my approach to risk management and position sizing, and developing a plan that truly fits my personal needs and goals.

Excellent book to say the least. There are no other books like it, as I have already searched.

Dr. Tharp gives a very deep outline of what it means to be a trader, and shows what it takes, pulling no punches. His explanations are very clear and simple, and as in depth and critical as a book on neurosurgery. If you are serious about trading or investing do not question this, purchase this book immediately, begin reading it, and take it seriously. One of the most profound insights that I have learned is, take total responsibility for your life. At first this was a very big and overwhelming concept for me, but gradually, I took it on. As I did, I found I had more and more power in my own personal life. Then I found I started to, not just have power, but have influence over the outcomes in my life. Presently, after applying this idea for several years now, I feel I do not just have power, but no matter what happens next, I know I will succeed. I feel I have a level of control in my life that emerges from within me as a source of strength. It makes no difference what the markets do. I will adapt to them changing, and I will adapt continuously. I will always find a way. I know what's constant is me. Where I am today in my journey is; I am discovering that the more open and unresisting I remain, the more I can adapt to the Universe. This gives me access to a bank-account that springs from that Universal Flow. Thus, I am an endless supply of abundance. In this case, for me, that abundance is equal to money. In other words, in plain and simple English; doesn't matter what the markets do, I'm in a state that I can always make money, and I am the source of that state. Thus I am responsible for my life, and creator of my experience of it.

I am a psychologist who also trades. I thought I had an inside "edge" knowing about how emotions work. But understanding them vs. experiencing them are two completely different things!!! Tharp's book helped me understand the importance of having a trading system, and how that system really needs to be a reflection of my style. You'll always see advertisements for different trading systems, but they're not individualized - only you can do that. Also, understanding all the underlying principles of different systems gives me a better overall grasp on how to add some structure to a very random market. I would also recommend Tharp's "Trading Your Way to Financial Freedom" which looks more deeply at your personal profile as it relates to investing.

diverse topics, psychology, trading examples and good argumentation. The author is very known in the field and has a good track record. Highly recommended.

Love it! Definitely a must for all traders

Item arrived as described. I love it.

Provides good concepts in creating "trade setups"

Could't finish. He lost me when he suggested I keep a "God Box" in my home and regularly write notes to God and drop in the box and somehow that would help me to trade better.
