Customer Reviews

Excerpts from reviews: "This series gets better and better. The crostics in this book are more challenging than previous Cyn Morris crostics. Watch for those clues that end in question marks- they are usually very clever puns. The quotes range from comic to quite serious in tone and are always worth the effort to solve. Bravo!" - Joan I. Andon "These puzzles are amazing brain builders! My brother fends off his Alzheimer's by doing several of these every day - entertaining and endlessly interesting as well." - Candace "What is brilliant about this and actually all of the Cynthia Morris' acrostic books is the cleverness of the clues.... And, I just love the fact that these puzzles are nice and long so that the fun lasts and lasts.... There is also a nice range of difficulty, so you get to relax with some, and think really hard with others. Please keep these coming!!!!" -

What is brilliant about this and actually all of the Cynthia Morris ÀfÂçÃ â ÑÃ â,,ç acrostic books is the cleverness of the clues. I especially love the clues that are plays on words. You have to twist your mind around, and think about the words in ways other than those that first come to mind. It feels like you are bending your mind, and building synapses. I love Cynthia ÀfÂçÃ â ÑÃ â,,çs cleverness with these plays on words. And, I just love the fact that these puzzles are nice and long so that the fun lasts and lasts, ÀfÂçÃ â ÑÃ Â|. you get to enjoy working them for a good long time. There is also a nice range of difficulty, so you get to relax with some, and think really hard with others. Please keep these coming!!!!

Whaaaaat?? That's what the woman on the cover seems to be saying. Or perhaps, "How can THAT be?" My favorite acrostic constructor is at it again. Laboriously Complex Word Labyrinth would be the proper title for this volume! How else to explain that the answer to Clue "Far from a star" is "nobody." Hello? Far from a star should mean us on earth, right? How-or whatever, this volume is exactly what a puzzle book should be...puzzling.
