South Sudan: The Untold Story From Independence To The Civil War

Synopsis

In July 2011, South Sudan was granted independence and became the world's newest country. Yet just two-and-a-half years after this momentous decision, the country was in the grips of renewed civil war and political strife. Hilde F. Johnson served as Special Representative of the Secretary-General and Head of the United Nations Mission in the Republic of South Sudan from July 2011 until July 2014 and, as such, she was witness to the many challenges which the country faced as it struggled to adjust to its new autonomous state. In this book, she provides an unparalleled insider's account of South Sudan's descent from the ecstatic celebrations of July 2011 to the outbreak of the disastrous conflict in December 2013 and the early, bloody phase of the fighting. Johnson's frequent personal and private contacts at the highest levels of government, accompanied by her deep knowledge of the country and its history, make this a unique eyewitness account of the turbulent first three years of the world's newest and yet most fragile country.

AMAZING work!! I'm from Bar Gazelle, South Sudan. I left Sudan in 1998 having lost half of my family to the civil war and had suffered a shot wound myself. I was only ten and now wanted to know more about my country's history!! Great detail so far, can't wait to finish the book. A lot of what I've read I already now somehow.

Great Book and i like the real Story of the Country, god the People & the Country.

A very documented book and well-informed from first hand sources. I particularly appreciated the fact that the book goes beyond the basic set of information and chronology by offering useful case studies for viability of newly created states and the need to offer sustainable institutions and long-term development plans. A recommended book to anyone interested in the latest evolutions on the African continent, but also on conflict resolution and emergent statehood.
