

The book was found

The Renewal Of The Heart Is The Mission Of The Church: Wesley's Heart Religion In The Twenty-First Century

Synopsis

John Wesley has arguably influenced more American Christians than any other Protestant interpreter. One reason for this wide influence is that Wesley often spoke about the \tilde{A} ¢â ¬Å"heart \tilde{A} ¢â ¬Â• and its \tilde{A} ¢â ¬Å"affections \tilde{A} ¢â ¬Â• \tilde{A} ¢â ¬â•that realm of life where all humans experience their deepest satisfactions, as well as some of their deepest conundrums. However, one of the problems of interpreting and appropriating Wesley is that we have been blinded to Wesley's actual views about $\tilde{A}\phi\hat{a}$ $\neg \hat{A}$ "heart religion $\tilde{A}\phi\hat{a}$ $\neg \hat{A}$ • by contemporary stereotypes about \tilde{A} ¢â ¬Å"affections \tilde{A} ¢â ¬Â• or \tilde{A} ¢â ¬Å"emotions. \tilde{A} ¢â ¬Â• Because of this, it is rare that either Wesley's friends or his critics appreciate his sophisticated understanding of affective reality. To make clear what Wesley meant when he emphasized the renewal of the heart, Gregory S. Clapper summarizes some recent paradigm-changing accounts of the nature of \$\tilde{A}\phi\tilde{a} \tau \tilde{A}\tilde{\text{"emotion}} \tilde{A}\phi\tilde{a} \tau \tilde{A}\tilde{\text{"emotion}} \tilde{A}\phi\tilde{a} \tau \tilde{A}\tilde{a} \tilde{A}\tilde{a} \tilde{A}\tilde{a} \tilde{A}\tilde{a} \tilde{A}\tilde{a} \tilde{A}\tilde{a} \tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\til produced by contemporary philosophers and theologians, and then applies them to Wesley's conception of the heart and its affections. These accounts of emotion throw new light on Wesley's vision of Christianity as a renewal of the heart and make it possible to reclaim the language of the heart, not as a pandering or manipulative rhetoric, but as the framework for a comprehensive theological vision of Christian life and thought. The book closes with several practical applications that make clear the power of Wesley's vision to transform lives today. For years Gregory Clapper has given himself mind, heart, and soul to understanding and unpacking Wesley's vision of heart religion. We have here the fruit of that work in all its beauty and density. In addition he rounds it off with a fine exploration of the significance of Wesley's heart religion for preaching, counseling, and evangelism. This is a fine achievement that deserves to be read throughout the length and breadth of the Church.-William J. AbrahamPerkins School of Theology, Southern Methodist UniversityAfter years of careful study Gregory Clapper has produced a very readable and engaging account of the human heart in terms of the religious affections. Not only does he maintain that the heart is the locus of God's action, clearing up some contemporary misunderstandings, but he also demonstrates quite convincingly that the religious affections for Wesley constituted the very substance of true religion, the nature of real Christianity itself.-Kenneth J. CollinsAsbury Theological SeminaryAmong Wesleyan Christians recently there is talk about not being doctrinal, expressing especially a fear of confessionalism. This misconstrual of the tradition represents the equation of confessional truth with creedal litmus tests. Clapper knows better! His important work reflects the Wesleyan teaching that what we believe with our head and with our heart go together. Faith is both a matter of mental affirmation of historic Christian truth as well as a deep abiding trust in that truth as salvific reality. To those who might assert that the mission of God's Church can go forward with an Evangel that separates this conjunctive theology, Clapper says loud and clear, $\tilde{A}\phi\hat{a} \neg \mathring{A}$ "I show you a more excellent way. $\tilde{A}\phi\hat{a} \neg \mathring{A}$ "-W. Stephen GunterDuke Divinity SchoolBy bringing together Wesley's concern for the renewal of the heart and recent emotion theory, Clapper offers a bold vision for the church. He gives an account of how thinking, feeling, and acting belong together in who we are before God, then he calls the church to consider its role in shaping believers in all these dimensions. This book is a valuable resource for all who take John Wesley as a guide for their ministry. -Sarah Heaner LancasterMethodist Theological School in OhioGregory S. Clapper is Professor of Religion and Philosophy at the University of Indianapolis and is Affiliate Professor of United Methodist Studies at Christian Theological Seminary. He has authored many articles and four books, including As If the Heart Mattered: A Wesleyan Spirituality (1997).

Book Information

File Size: 576 KB

Print Length: 164 pages

Publisher: Cascade Books, an Imprint of Wipf and Stock Publishers (January 1, 2010)

Publication Date: January 1, 2010

Sold by: A A Digital Services LLC

Language: English

ASIN: B00FK3J5XA

Text-to-Speech: Enabled

X-Ray: Not Enabled

Word Wise: Enabled

Lending: Enabled

Screen Reader: Supported

Enhanced Typesetting: Enabled

Best Sellers Rank: #564,553 Paid in Kindle Store (See Top 100 Paid in Kindle Store) #71 inà Kindle Store > Kindle eBooks > Religion & Spirituality > Christian Books & Bibles > Christian Denominations & Sects > Protestantism > Methodist #259 inà Books > Christian Books & Bibles > Christian Denominations & Sects > Protestantism > Methodist #369 inà Â Kindle Store > Kindle eBooks > History > Religion > Christianity > Biblical History & Culture > Historical Theology

Customer Reviews

Dr. Greg Clapper has written a second book about the religion of the heart (see below), taking the idea and applying to the church's mission. He begins by using two questions to portray the difference between a religion of the mind and a religion of the heart: (1) "What is Christianity?"--the question which takes us into beliefs and doctrines, and (2) "Who is a Christian?"--the question which takes into the realm of character and conduct. Pause long enough to ponder how the first question roots the Christian life in dogmas (the head), while the second roots it in dispositions (the heart). Both questions serve a useful purpose, and they must not be pitted against each other. But in the overall history of Christianity, it is the heart question (#2) that has more nearly defined what we mean by 'faith.'This is why people like John Wesley could differentiate between "dead orthodoxy" and "living faith"--what classical theology came to refer to as "the mind descending into the heart" and making us contemplative. Greg Clapper is someone who sees and speaks about this kind of faith in our day.

The first five chapters are written like a seminary theology textbook, thoroughly researched and with foot notes. These lay the foundation on Wesley's thought, but I found them plodding. In the final chapters six and seven Dr. Clapper cuts loose with some lively thought and applications for bringing life into persons' experience of Christ for their spirits and their living. These two chapters are meant for every one and well written.

Download to continue reading...

The Renewal of the Heart Is the Mission of the Church: Wesley's Heart Religion in the Twenty-First Century John Wesley on Christian Beliefs Volume 1: The Standard Sermons in Modern English Volume I, 1-20 (Standard Sermons of John Wesley) The Complete Works of John Wesley: Volume 1, Sermons 1-53 (The Compete Works of John Wesley) Envisioning the Faculty for the Twenty-First Century: Moving to a Mission-Oriented and Learner-Centered Model (The American Campus) General Intellects: Twenty-Five Thinkers for the Twenty-First Century Sex and the Constitution: Sex, Religion, and Law from America's Origins to the Twenty-First Century The Reemergence of Liberation Theologies: Models for the Twenty-First Century (New Approaches to Religion and Power) A House for Hope: The Promise of Progressive Religion for the Twenty-first Century On Heaven and Earth: Pope Francis on Faith, Family, and the Church in the Twenty-First Century Sailboat Church: Helping Your Church Rethink Its Mission and Practice Democratic Religion: Freedom, Authority, and Church Discipline in the Baptist South, 1785-1900 (Religion in America) Waking to God's Dream: Spiritual Leadership and Church Renewal The Church Awakening: An Urgent Call for Renewal Minding the Good Ground: A Theology for Church Renewal Truth Aflame: Theology for the Church in Renewal Welcome to the Church Year: An Introduction to the Seasons of the Episcopal Church (Welcome to the Episcopal Church) Constitutional Theology: Notes on the

Book of Church Order of the Reformed Church in America (Historical Series of the Reformed Church in America) Growing an Engaged Church: How to Stop "Doing Church" and Start Being the Church Again Who Runs the Church?: 4 Views on Church Government (Counterpoints: Church Life) Sword of the Lord: Military Chaplains from the First to the Twenty-First Century (Critical Problems in History)

Contact Us

DMCA

Privacy

FAQ & Help