Truly, Madly, Deeply: Underwater Photography

Synopsis

These amazing photographs showcase the stunning variety of marine life, from gargantuan sharks to microscopic invertebrates to vast gardens of coral. Gathered over 10 years, these glorious images explore the colors, patterns, and textures in the ocean, and will inspire the amateur marine biologist inside us all.

Customer Reviews

Eye-catching, jaw-dropping images have the power to stop people in their tracks, to make them stare and, most importantly, to care. Ali's wonderful work will do just that, raising awareness of the fragile beauty of life in our seas. I am thrilled that there will be an Arabic version of this book, which will bring these stories and these characters to a new audience, winning the oceans many new friends. Dr Alexander Mustard, Underwater Photographer and Marine Biologist

Ali bin Thalith was born in Dubai. In the Seventies, it was made up of a series of villages, and Jumeirah Beach was yards from the house where he grew up. Inspired by Jacques Cousteau, he learned to dive and operate his first camera - a Nikon FM2 - and realised he could combine these twin passions and trained in France and London as a marine photographer and documentary filmmaker. As the official photographer for Prince Hamdan al Maktoum, he was asked by the Prince to set up Dubai's first photography award, HIPA, becoming Secretary General and overseeing its global development.

The subjects of the pictures are great and display technical skill in taking the pictures. The photographer is clearly very good at this. However there is a certain similarity to all the picture compositions - after a while it appears one is looking at a scientific record instead of photography.

One of the best underwater photography books ever published. Ali is a true artist and story teller! Each photo takes you on a journey and makes you fall in love with the Ocean page after page! A Great Book!
