Marian Elaine: The Silent Witness

Synopsis

On September 17, 2014, Marian Elaine choked to death. She had just turned 78 years old. This true story tells of her dementia diagnosis that exposed the failures of our medical and elder care systems, and the failures within a family. The circumstances and her ultimate demise, described in this book, expose how impostors played a part in stealing the last months of her life. Legislation is needed to impede the common pattern of abuse and self-serving practices growing in our society.

Karen R. Ziegler is a Real Estate Broker in San Diego County practicing since 1990. Karen has chosen to honor her mother by telling her story in hopes to help others through their battles with terrible disease, highlighting that there are ethical choices available.

Wow...Ms. Ziegler's ability to help the reader feel the emotions she felt during her mother's ordeal is talent. She tells the story of losing her mother, helplessly, while begging authorities and family members to understand what was truly going on with her mother's illness. Support from the immediately family was obvious but those who had financial interest and alternative motives, held the authority in the decisions made about her mother's care and rehabilitation...cutting short a life that meant so much to so many. It is sad to know that although a child knows what is best for an aging parent, the marriage between the mother and step-father had full control...we must find a way to speak for those who have been silenced...and in this case, possibly poisoned. This book is a fast read because you won't want to put it down.
