I have visited over 20 countries and lived in a couple, the Philippines being where I presently reside. Keeping these tips, especially in 3rd world or developing nations is a key to not only your happiness but also your sanity. There are always things we can learn from another culture. And yes, I agree that the people themselves are the gems. There is much diversity depending on which area of the country you're in. I would also add trying the local cuisine, being careful of the cleanliness of the place. Asking them questions about their food is a great opening for conversation and learning. Good quick tips. I like to read Bud's books about life in the Philipines and feel that the advice he offers were serve expats living in other countries as well. I live in Panama and can say all the advice and most of the problems he talks about appl here as well. Good job Bud.

This is an awesome well written gem. I highly recomened it to anyone looking for a good read or thinking of moving abroad.

Great, quick read for enjoying the Philippines. I would definitely recommend this book to others. I also recommend other books by this author.

Well written with a refreshing and insightful look into the life of an expat. I highly recommend this entertaining read!

A bit on the skimpy side but I consider it a donation to Bud's youtube channel.

Its Okay

Earnest, but not very helpful. I found it preachy and the analysis of the human brain was unnecessary. Bud obviously swings in a different part of the Philippines than I do.
