Synopsis

This clear, readable introductory text for undergraduate and graduate Education Law courses or modules offers a practical guide to everyday problems such as student expression, discipline, religion, curriculum, social media, privacy, charter schools, discrimination, special education, and more. Features include distinctions among school, district, state, and federal law; the Facts and Find research method; the Cascade approach to the American legal system; lobbying advice; and the new federal Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA), the replacement to No Child Left Behind. “David C. Bloomfield has written a user-friendly guide to education law that will prove extremely helpful to parents, teachers, and all others concerned about public education.” (Diane Ravitch, Research Professor, Steinhardt School of Culture, Education, and Human Development, New York University) “A useful and a distinctive school law text.” (Teachers College Record)

David C. Bloomfield (M.P.A., Princeton; J.D., Columbia, Paul Robeson Prize in Minority Legal Studies) is Professor of Education Leadership, Law, and Policy at Brooklyn College and The City

University of New York Graduate Center. A former teacher, he was General Counsel to the New York City Board of Education.

As a student of David Bloomfield, this book definitely came in handy while preparing for my School Law final. The language is concise and easy to comprehend for us non-law school students.
