Gr. 4⁺-8. A collection of stories from 18 tribal nations representing the major North and Central American Indian cultural areas. The short stories range from one to four pages and vary in complexity and readability. Some are pourquoi stories, and some are cautionary tales, but all involve the relationship of the two-legged and the four-legged with their immediate plant world. Bruchac provides solid background information in his introduction, and each carefully selected story is accompanied by a black-and-white line drawing. Comprehensive tribal information and source notes are included, and an extensively detailed glossary is appended. Karen Hutt

Parents, teachers and Children will delight in these magical stories that promote responsible stewardship toward all living things. With original illustrations by Mohawk artists John Kahionhes Fadden and David Kanietakeron Fadden, these mythical stories draw upon legends from eighteen Native American tribes and illustrate the importance of plant life in Native American traditions.

I have so much good to say about this book. All the stories engage my four year old who just can't get enough. It's so easy to relate to nature at her level and she grasps it all. Observing her reaction to the stories is like experiencing an ancient magical language translated. This book is a rare find and I'm so fortunate to have one. Thank you for this gift.

The PLANTS, our first medicines....much insight here...

I'm very happy with the book. The stories are good for a starter.

I am waldorf teacher and have had great success with the stories found in this book with children in second and third grade.

good stuff
